Financial and business policy of producers and processors of wood plays an irreplaceable role in maintaining adequate liquidity and realization of business objectives. Revenues from timber are on the one hand a primary source of income and sources of financing of forest enterprises; on the other hand, they are a significant cost factor for businesses producing energy based on renewable resources and wood processing businesses.

Banská Bystrica and Slovak forestry chamber. Following on from previous events is looking for possibilities for mutual successful prosperity of producers and processors of wood and thereby achieve the objectives of economic policy. To do this is necessary to create favourable motivational factors of the macroeconomic environment and look for ways to successful implementation of financial policies aimed at increasing efficiency, profitability and competitiveness of entities operating in the global economic environment to ensure the sustainable development of wood raw material producers and processors and ensure that their liquidity is not threatened.
